NORWICH NEGRO SOUGHT AS MURDERER

THROUGH SMAS DEANE LAFAYETTE CAME TO AMERICA

In these days when so many have been commemorating the birthday of Lafayette, Connecticut people may with pride remember that it was a man with pride remember that it was a man from their state who had the honor of inducing Lafayette to come to this country to serve in our army, because Lafayette felt our war was "a just one." That man was Slias Deane, born in Groton. Conn. He was sent by the United Colonies as commercial and political agent on March 2d, 1776, to Europe to purchase 100 pieces of brass cannon and arms, ammunition and clothing for 25,000 men.

He smbarked and arrived in France in June, with but slight knowledge of the language, without an acquaintance and without that best of all patrons and supporters, a fund adequate to the suppose, and for months he received no advices from his constituents.
